

Dr. Livingston Farrand is inaugurated as fourth president of Cornell University. Left to right: Charles M. Schwab, Judge Frank Harris Hiscock of the court of appeals, George F. Baker, donor of $1,500,000 to build laboratory building, and Dr. Farrand.

©Keystone View Co.

The school of instruction for Washington police. The bluecoats are not learning their A B C's, but are taking instruction in the little things that every good policeman should know—parking rules, certain points of law, the rights of the pedestrian, etc.

Photo by I. Pridgen, staff photographer.

The United States Marine Band, recently returned from one of its most successful tours, playing, for the most part, in cities along the Atlantic coast. Capt. Santelmann, leader of the famous musical organization, in foreground.

Photo by Apeda.

First step in organization of an American ballet school in Washington by Miss Gertrude Hoffman. Five hundred Washington girls attended a lecture at Keith's Theater by Miss Hoffman, and members of her dancing company showed some of the ballet steps.

Photo by Edmonston.

Mrs. Vincent Astor returns from abroad on the S. S. Aquitania after a summer in Europe.

By Paul Thompson.

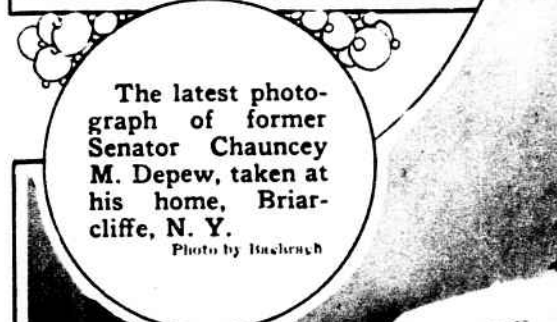

"Give 'em something unusual—something out of the ordinary run!" said the press agent. So Miss May McAvoy, photoplay star, posed with her pet pig. And the press agent says "the pig's name is Paddy; that he is an educated pig, more or less, and that he never misses the call of the dinner bell."

Lieut. Shelby, in charge of the Washington police school of instruction.

Photo by I. Pridgen, staff photographer.

The latest photograph of former Senator Chauncey M. Depew, taken at his home, Briarcliffe, N. Y.

Photo by Huchensch.

Back to the days of the caravan for your clothes. Fashion makers—especially American designers—make full use of the skins of animals to clothe milady. There is an undeniable atmosphere of richness in the fur garb, however flattening it is to the pocketbook.

Wide World Photo.